"Innovative thinker ... able to find the right strategy."

- Who's Who Legal

Marlon Hylton is a partner in our Advocacy Group and Head of Discovery Management. Marlon practices exclusively in the areas of e-discovery and information governance.

In his role as Head of Discovery Management, Marlon designs customized and strategic discovery solutions for litigation matters through collaboration with the firm's litigators and clients. Marlon is committed to providing advice and direction on every stage of the e-discovery process to ensure legal defensibility, security, cost-effectiveness and efficiency. He also applies his experience as a member of the Ontario E-Discovery Implementation Committee and the Sedona Conference Working Group 7 to implement forward-looking principles and e-discovery best practices.

As part of his information governance, cybersecurity and data breach practice, Marlon provides legal and technical advice directly to our clients on defensible information governance strategies and systems, including records management, legal hold, email usage, instant messaging, social media, information security and other related policies.

An active participant in the information management community, Marlon is a frequent speaker on e-discovery and information governance issues and is part of the faculty for the Osgoode Certificate in eDiscovery, Information Governance and Privacy.
