Aaron Cressman is a member of the 2018 summer student class at Cassels Brock.

Aaron is a J.D. candidate at Osgoode Hall Law School. He is an active member of the student community, leading orientation week activities and mentoring first year students. Aaron has also worked as a Research Assistant to Osgoode's Artist in Residence and was a member of his school's Environmental Justice and Sustainability Clinic.

Aaron graduated from Queen's University with an Honours Bachelor of Arts, majoring in Sociology and minoring in History. During his time at Queen's, Aaron volunteered with his student government's Commission of Environment and Sustainability and worked as a server and bartender at one of Kingston's fine dining establishments. Prior to attending law school, Aaron spent a summer working at the law firm of Woods, Clemens, Fletcher & Cronin.

In his spare time, Aaron enjoys reading and attending live concerts. As an avid snowboarder, he spent a winter living in Banff, enjoying the mountains.
